1. DETAILED ACTION

2. Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

a. A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

b. (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1- 7, 9-13, and 16-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Gilliland et al [USPAT 5,774,614].

c. Gilliland et al disclose an optical wiring device comprising:

i. an electric connecting portion 28, 32 [column 4, lines 27-28];

ii. optical transmission means 46 [optical fiber];

iii. an optical device 20 for conducting an optoelectric conversion, wherein the optical device including at least one of a surface light emitting device, and a surface light receiving device [column 3, lines 14-16].

d. In re claims 6 and 7, Gilliland et al teach at column 3, lines 1-9 that VCSEL and PIN diode can be utilized.

e. In re claim 9, Gilliland et al teach at column 3, lines 26-31 that the conducting members provide flip-chip technology.

f. In re claims 9 and 10, Fig. 1 and 2 show a wiring substrate 30 having windows.

g. In re claim 11, a plate 124 is shown in Fig. 3.

- h. In re claim 12, Gilliland et al teach at column 4, line 24 a flexible substrate 30.
- i. In re claims 16 and 17, Gilliland et al show a mirror layers 21 with an active layer in Fig. 1.
- j. In re claim 20, a metal thin film 30 is shown in Fig. 1.
- k. In re claims 23 and 24, a CMOS is shown at column 6, line 15.
- l. In re claims 25-27, Gilliland et al teach at column 6, lines 24-26 that a computer server is utilized, therefore, it is clear that the display with an input/output port and a network are inherently shown.

5. Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claims 8, 14, and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gilliland et al.

- iv. In re claim 8, Gilliland et al disclose every aspect of claimed invention except for the metal-semiconductor-metal photodiode. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Gilliland et al's device to include the metal-semiconductor-metal photodiode, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.

v. In re claim 14, Gilliland et al disclose every aspect of claimed invention except for the electronic circuit device having a parallel-to-serial converting function. Gilliland et al, however, teach at column 6, lines 9-34 that the flexible substrate can perform multiple functions. Therefore, It would have been obvious to the one skilled in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Gilliland et al's device to include the electronic circuit device having a parallel-to-serial converting function for the purpose of higher coupling efficiency of the attachment of the optoelectronic device.

vi. In re claim 15, Gilliland et al disclose every aspect of claimed invention except for the Si substrate. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Gilliland et al's device to include the Si substrate, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. In re Leshin, 125 USPQ 416.

8. Conclusion

9. In conclusion, the above-identified differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the U.S. Patent to Gilliland et al are such that the subject matter, considered as a whole, would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art.

10. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See attached PTO-892.

11. The prior art submitted by applicant has been considered and made of record (note the
